QUAL 8513: Evaluation Theory

Spring 2016

This course critically examines genres of evaluation such as evaluation for policy making, accountability, learning, contextual understanding, and democratization. Across genres, the course will focus on evaluation approaches’ assumptions about knowledge, views of social programs and social change, stances regarding the role and purpose of evaluation in society, location of values in evaluation, and intended utilization and applicability of evaluative findings.

This course counts for the Interdisciplinary Qualitative Studies Certificate program.
